

Baby Drawn Out of the Water

By Julia Erasito

Jochebed: Miriam, could you go in the city and buy some flour and oil please?

Miriam: Umm, sure, mother, I'll try my best to be quick.

(Miriam returns from the city)

Miriam: Huh? Where did Mom go?

(Jochebed enters with the child)

Jochebed: [Praying] Thank you, Lord, for giving me such a fine child.

Miriam: Oh dear, Mom, I have really bad news!

Jochebed: Huh? Well, what is it, honey?

Miriam: Pharaoh is going to kill every newborn boy in Egypt!

Jochebed: Oh dear! How did you know?

Miriam: When I was on my way back, I heard Pharaoh's officers discussing it.

Miriam: Mom, why does Pharaoh have to come up with this idea? What did our people do to him that made him like this?

Jochebed: Miriam, don't complain, have faith. God will make a way; all we need to do is trust in Him. It may be hard, but with God's help, we can do this!

Miriam: If God can make a way, why can't he do it now?!

Jochebed: Miriam, God requires our patience, not complaints. God has done so many things for us; the least we can do is just trust and believe in Him. So please, have faith, Miriam.

Miriam: [Sighs] Fine, but if he dies, it's all God's fault!

Jochebed: Oh, Miriam!

Jochebed: Then, we'd better get going. Come with me, Miriam!

(They both go to the river. Jochebed brings a basket that she made from home, put reeds in it, and covered it with tar. She then placed the child in it, laid the basket in the water, and lightly pushed it)

Jochebed: Say your final goodbyes, Miriam.

Miriam: Goodbye, brother. Hopefully, I'll see you again.

(Miriam stood in a distance to see what would happen to the baby)

(Bithia comes out to bathe, then she suddenly noticed a basket floating in the river)

Bithia: Hey! You! Fetch that basket for me.

(Mariam goes to get the basket and gives it to the Princess)

Bithia: Hmmm, is this a baby? Huh? Wait, this is one of the Hebrew women's child!

Miriam: Shall I call a Hebrew woman to nurse the baby for you?

Bithia: Yes, please do.

(Miriam goes to look for her mother)

Miriam: Mom, I have some really good news!

Jochebed: Huh? What is it, Miriam?

Miriam: Well, when you put my brother in the basket, I could not leave him – so I followed him.

Jochebed: Well, then what happened?

Miriam: Then the Princess came out to bathe, and she called me to get the basket, and when she found out it was a Hebrew child, I offered to call a lady to nurse the child for her.

Jochebed: Alright, then, we'd better get going!

(Jochebed and Miriam appear before the Princess)

Jochebed: Yes, your majesty. What can I do for you?

Bithia: Go, take this child and nurse him for me; when he is mature, bring him to me, and I will pay you your wages. His name shall be called Moses, for I drew him out of the water.

Jochebed: Yes, your majesty. I will do as you wish.

(Jochebed returns home with Miriam and Moses)

Miriam: Wow, Mom, God really showed up!

Jochebed: See, Miriam, I told you! All we had to do is have faith.

Miriam: I shall never let doubt get ahead of me anymore!

Jochebed: Yes, Miriam, let us thank God. [Prays] Dear God, thank You for showing up. Thank You for saving my son and reuniting us as a family. We thank You for all You have done for us! Help us, oh Lord, to increase our faith in You and not let doubt get the best of us. We praise You for Who You are. Amen.

The End
