

A Colourful Message

Clown Act – Asivorosi Wakanivesi

(Coco comes walking in puffed out from the side...stops and turns to see audience)

Oh hi there.....phew (pats stomach)I am stuffed.....I just came back from an amazing birthday party.....there was balloons and ice-cream and games and cake and presents and lollies (sighs)....so much...do I sound like I like food? Well, I sure do!

One of my favorite candies was there and do you know what they're called? (takes packet of out of bag)....

M & M's...my favourite!

You folks are really blessed to be here today...because....I brought back some for each one of you (takes plastic of M & M's out of bag and throws them towards judges and students) Here...pass them around so everyone has one, but you're not allowed to eat yet.

I'm not sure about you, but the way I eat M & M's is like this (opens packet, pours them in the palm of his hand, then munches them fast them)...anyone like me? I just love M & Ms.

But did you know?.....there's actually a really neat story about M & Ms and I'm gonna tell you the story today...it's a bit like a poem, but I know you're gonna learn something today that you'll never, ever forget the next time you eat them.

Now everyone look at your packet of M & Ms in your hand. These candies tell a story, the best you will hear...about Jesus...His death...so we could draw near. Aw!

Notice the colours, all 6 in our story...telling of Jesus...His death, life and glory (lifts hands to heaven)

Look at each M n M in the plastic and turn them around a bit. (lifts up a big plastic one)

The letter is more than what you might see. Turn it over (turns the plastic M n M around each time) to see an M, W, 3 and E.

Can you see a brown M n M in your plastic?

Let's start with brown, the colour of the cross, to which Jesus was nailed (sniffs sadly) where His life was lost.

Have you got a red one?

Well, the red is for His blood shed on Calvary, for your sins and mine that we might be free (runs around randomly calling out free...free...free)

The M on all your candies stands for Messiah, who died in our place...forgiving our sins through the gift of God's grace.

Now, turn a candy until you see number '3'. The 3 counts the days Jesus spent in the grave, refusing to stay, He risers to save.

Turn it again until you see letter 'E'.

The 'E' stands for Easter and God's eternal plan. God brought us salvation by the death of one man.

Everyone say, 'one man' (repeats 'one man'). Who's that one man? (puts hand to ear, waiting to hear them say 'Jesus') I can't hear you! (hand to ear while they shout 'Jesus') That's better! Jesus is that 'one man'!

Now, can you see a yellow and orange candy? Yes? Well, the yellow and orange tell of Easter's sunrise, its warmth and its freedom replacing the cries.

Now, look at the green candy?

Green shows new life as clearly as Spring, that comes with the promise of the resurrected King.

Who's the King? (waits for 'Jesus')...Yes! (points to people)

Now, look at your blue candy.

Blue is for baptism's claim of new life, conquering sin with all of its strife.

Do you know what happened to a great aunt of mine when she was baptized? She had really thick reading glasses but when she came up out of the water at baptism, she put on her glasses but she couldn't see...everything was blurry. She never ever wore glasses again coz God healed her eyes under the waters of baptism...isn't that cool!

Now, turn your candy until you see a 'W'.

The 'W' is for worship and worthy is He...of praise (praises), adoration (lifts hands in adoration), submission (bows with both hands) and glee (runs around saying...'thank-you, Jesus, thank-you Jesus!!)

Now, I've come to the end...(sadly) ...aw.....but (excitedly), after I go, you can open your plastic and enjoy.

I'll finish the story with the candy's sweet, sweet taste.

And I trust you'll all feel God's love and His holy embrace.

God bless....(skips out)
