This painting was inspired by my friend who has a great sense of humor, so I painted this anthropomorphic landscape artwork.

* This work is not meant to express admiration for any worldly idol; it is simply a imaginative landscape painting.

List the materials and tools used in completing your project:

pencil, eraser
watercolour paper, 12-colour watercolour paint set, nylon watercolour brushes (sizes No. 1-6), 7-well mixing palette (one compartment for water), adhesive tape.

Describe the step-by-step procedures used to complete your project:

First, I taped the edges of the paper, stretched the composition with pencil. Then I began mixing the colours that roughly matched the ones I had in mind. Using large brush, I quickly applied a wash of water with small amount of the prepared pigments across the paper (Since I had not stretched the watercolour paper beforehand, it soon swelled). While waiting for it to dry, I observed the first layer of colour, and mixing colours for next stages. I started with the dark mountain in the lower left (the clothing), then a range of mountains in reddish brown, turquoise, red, and pink, leading to the left cheek. On the sea of clouds at dusk, which forms the face, there are two prominent peaks (noses), and a turquoise basin representing mouth. At far end of cloud sea, two faint mountains emerge as the eyes. Above the sea, the twilight sky forms the forehead, with dark clouds drifting across it as the eyebrows. The hair is depicted as blue-black clouds blending into the high sky.
