

“The Righteous Ones Stand for God”

Preaching by Harold Khan

Good morning judges, teachers, parents, and fellow students. Today I will be preaching on the theme, “The Righteous Ones.” Our main Scripture is found in Psalm 34: 17 and it reads, “The righteous cry, and the Lord heareth, and delivereth them out of all their troubles.”

The sermon is based on 3 outlines:

- a. The righteous ones walk with God.
- b. The righteous ones shine in dark places.
- c. The righteous ones are blessed by God.

There was once a young boy who attended school where many students cheated during exams. One day, the teacher left the classroom for a few minutes. Many students quickly began copying answers from each other.

The boy knew it was wrong. Even though he was afraid others might laugh at him, he refused to cheat. Later, the teacher discovered what had happened and praised the boy for his honesty.

Years later, that same boy became a respected Christian leader because he learned early that righteousness means doing right even when nobody is watching.

Just like that boy, God wants us to stand for what is right no matter what others do.

The word “righteous” means to live rightly before God. A righteous person obeys God, follows His Word, and chooses what is right instead of wrong. Today many young people follow the crowd. Some choose bad language, disobedience, dishonesty, and sinful living. But God is still calling young people to stand out as righteous ones.

First, the righteous ones walk with God.

Psalm 1 tells us that the blessed man does not walk in the counsel of the ungodly but delights in the law of the Lord. This means we must be careful about the friends we choose, the things we watch, and the words we speak. If we want to be righteous, we must spend time with God through prayer and Bible reading every day.

Second, the righteous ones shine in dark places.

Jesus said in Matthew 5 that we are the light of the world. Light shines brightest in darkness. In our schools, homes, and communities, people should see Jesus in our actions. We should be respectful to teachers, obedient to parents, truthful in our work, and kind to others.

Sometimes people may laugh at us for doing right, but we must still stand for God just like the story of the boy who refused to cheat during an exam even when everyone else was cheating. He chose righteousness over popularity. God honored his honesty, and later he became a strong Christian leader. This reminds us that righteousness means doing right even when no one is watching.

Third, the righteous ones are blessed by God.

Psalms 34 says that God hears the cries of the righteous and delivers them from trouble. Being righteous does not mean life will always be easy, but it means God will always be with us. When trials come, God gives strength to those who trust Him.

In conclusion, God is searching for righteous young people today. Young people who will stand for truth, purity, honesty, and obedience.

Will you be one of “The Righteous Ones”?

Let us choose today to follow God with all our hearts and shine for Him wherever we go.

Thank you and God bless you.
