

Grace Beyond the Grave

By: Anonymous

In fields near Bethlehem one silent night,
A fragile cry became the Light,
No crown of gold, no royal bed,
Just borrowed straw beneath His head.

He walked the shores of Galilee,
And spoke of grace that set us free,
He healed the blind, restored the lame,
And called the broken each by name.

Yet love was lifted on a tree,
Outside the gates of Jerusalem's plea
With wounded hands and and mercy wide,
He bore the world and for us died.

The stone was sealed, the night was long
But death could not withstand its song.
At rising dawn the grave was bare,
Hope breathed again in open air.

O risen Christ, our living way,
Our night transformed to endless day.
By grace alone our hearts are free,
Forever held in Calvary.
