

Noah's Story

Dramatic Dialogue by Perez O'Brien

(Noah stands in front of the audience, looking thoughtful. He speaks directly to them, using his hands to show emotion.)

NOAH (seriously):

Everyone around me thought I was strange.

They laughed when I said a great flood was coming.

They didn't believe me.

But I wasn't joking.

God spoke to me.

(He pauses, places a hand on his heart.)

He said the world had become wicked.

People were hurting each other.

Being greedy.

Not listening to what's right.

And God... He was sad.

So, He told me to build an ark.

A HUGE boat.

(He spreads his arms wide, acting amazed.)

I didn't know how to build a boat that big!

But I trusted God.

He gave me the instructions.

I used gopher wood.

I made it three stories tall!

And while I worked, day after day, people just laughed.

They pointed.

They said, “There’s old Noah, building a boat with no water!”

But I kept going.

(He smiles slightly, proud.)

Then, one day, animals started arriving.

Two by two—just like God said.

Lions, tigers, elephants... even tiny ants!

They marched right into the ark.

And then, God told me,

“Take your family and get inside.”

(He lowers his voice.)

We shut the door.

And then...

It started to rain.

(He raises his hands like rain is falling.)

Drip... drop... SPLASH!

It rained for forty days and forty nights.

The whole world was covered in water.

But inside the ark, we were safe.

(He takes a breath and smiles gently.)

Finally, the rain stopped.

The water went down.

I sent out a dove.

It came back with an olive leaf.

A sign of peace.

A sign of hope.

(He looks up, joyful.)

We left the ark, and God placed a rainbow in the sky.

He made a promise—

Never again would He flood the whole earth.

(He points upward, as if seeing the rainbow.)

And I knew...

God had kept us safe because we listened.

Because we trusted Him.

And now, we had a brand-new beginning.

(Noah smiles warmly and takes a small bow.)
