

God and Me and the Game

by secret

I wake before the sun can rise,
Heart open wide, and eager eyes.
Seventeen years, full of fire,
God in my soul — my heart's desire.

He moves in heartbeat, breath, and sky,
In quiet prayers and when I fly
Across the net to spike that ball,
In every set, I give my all.

On court or sand, in sweat and play,
I feel His strength in every day.
I love myself — strong and true,
Believing in what I can do.

In service deep or winning smile,
He walks with me — every mile.
And even when the score gets tough,
His love reminds me I'm enough.

God and me, we stand as one,
Under moon, under blazing sun.
Seventeen years, youth's joyful art —
Game in my hands, and peace in my hear
