

My Mother

Manamo'ui Lovodua

My mother is a woman whom I deeply love;
she's strong, solid like a rock – an angel from above.
Although she's aged - silver hair and deep lines in her face, her beauty shines as a lamp, with elegance and grace.

My mother is the woman from Proverbs 31.
Knowledge rests upon her brow; of wisdom she lacks none.
Hard work is no stranger; she works dawn to dusk, making others' lives comfortable and completing every task.

My mother is the gemstone; I've been blessed all my life.
Though we've gone through bitterness and strife
and arguments that deprive us of our happiness,
our bond o'er the years is never less.

My mother will forever be kept in my heart,
even when her soul from this earth will depart.
I wrote this for you, mother, praying as you read,
you'll see my love for you and God, in you, I heed.
