

MR. WILLING

"Good morning, Brother Willing!" said Pastor Alltruth checking his watch. "Please come in. You are right on time. It is almost 10 o'clock. I said we would try to leave by 10 o'clock. I am so glad you are not late."

"I always try to be a little early," said Mr. Willing. "It would not be right for me to be late. I know your time is important, and I do not want you to have to wait for me."

"Thank you," said Pastor Alltruth. "We are not being kind or respectful to others when we make them wait. When we make others wait, we are saying they are not important."

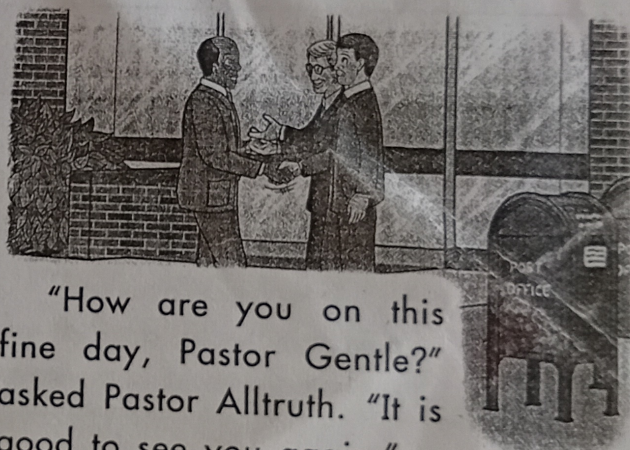

"Since God is the Giver of time, we are also not showing respect to Him when we do not use His time wisely," agreed Mr. Willing. "Some time ago I was teaching my son Willie how important it is to be on time and never to be late. He said, 'Daddy, I want all I do to please Jesus. It does not please Him when I am late.'"

"Willie is a fine and wise young man," said Pastor Alltruth. He checked his watch again. "We should go now, and if you will allow me, I would like to stop by the post office before we go to the Bible bookstore. I need to check the post office box to see if there is any mail for the church."

"That will be fine," said Mr. Willing. "I knew you would probably have things to do in town, so I did not plan to be back at a certain time. I'm sure we will have a fine day together."

As Pastor Alltruth and Mr. Willing walked to the post office, they met Pastor Gentle of Harmony Chapel.

"How are you on this fine day, Pastor Gentle?" asked Pastor Alltruth. "It is good to see you again."

"It's good to see you also," said Pastor Gentle. "I pray for you often and for your fine church and school. Because you and your church were kind and prayed for our needs, we now have a Christian school."

"Christian schools should help other Christian schools get started," said Pastor Alltruth. "Our church wants to help one or more Christian schools get started each year."

Pastor Gentle, please allow me to introduce our missionary to the north country. This is Mr. Willing."

"I'm pleased to meet you," said Pastor Gentle.

"And I'm pleased to meet you," replied Mr. Willing.

Then Pastor Gentle asked, "Mr. Willing, would you be willing to come to our school on Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock? I would like to introduce you to our boys and girls and have you speak in chapel."

"I would be happy to come," answered Mr. Willing.

"Mr. Willing is certainly a kind man," thought Pastor Gentle as he walked to his car.

"I have checked all the mail addressed to the church, and I will read it later," said Pastor Alltruth. Wow we'll stop at the bookstore. I want to introduce you to Mr. Lovejoy. I know you will want to take a large number of Christian tracts and booklets with you. I'm sure we can find them here in his bookstore and print shop."

The little bell on the door sounded as Pastor Alltruth and Mr. Willing walked into the bookstore. "Good morning, sirs," said Mr. Lovejoy. "It's good to see you today. How may I help you?"

"Mr. Lovejoy, I would like to introduce you to Mr. Willing. We're here to find out what tracts and booklets you have that Mr. Willing can take with him to the north country," said Pastor Alltruth.

"I need tracts that will tell people how to be saved," said Mr. Willing. "I also need some booklets to give to people after they are saved as well as copies of the Gospel of John."

"I have the tracts and booklets you need," said Mr. Lovejoy. "Our print shop prints many Gospel tracts and booklets. This is one way we can help spread the Gospel message. If you will allow me, I would like to give you the tracts and booklets. This is one way I can help spread the Gospel to the north country."

"How kind of you!" said Mr. Willing. "I'm sure God will bless you for being thoughtful of our needs."
