

The Mission of the Cross

by Angelique Iola Wiguno

A hopeful heart shining bright
Walking through the desolate lands,
With robes of white he follows the light
Cradling a small cross in his hands.

He walks the path that few feet trod
A road with no direction,
A light so bright he follows abroad
Carrying the story from nation to nation.

A story of love so pure to be told
The testimony of his healed scars,
The salvation of the world his lips hold
From the One who holds the stars.

A life upturned from depths of sin
Proof of endless love so true,
Peace now freely flow within
In those who live a life anew.

They need to know the Way
And see the Light that redeems,
Adonai is the One who can save the day
From the sin that steals our dreams.

For salvation he found in One alone
The light broke through the chains of sin,
This news of the Son whose blood atones
A mission to proclaim the truth therein.
