Artwork Description:

"The Destruction of the Self" is a piece of art that highlights the devastating effects of insecurities. In "The Destruction of the Self", shortened as TDOS, the blue, repeating pattern symbolizes the perfect human self, perfectly as-is from the very image of God. The big mix of ugly, striking colors of the centre glob symbolizes our insecurities and how they mess with our perception of ourselves. Overall, TDOS showcases how originally, our lives are perfect, for we are made in God's image, but with the insurgence of social media, insecurities form as sharp and unappealing mismatches in our perception of self. A final detail I would like to mention is that the painting itself represents our perception of ourselves, not anyone else's, yours.
